

IWSC WINNER'S PACK 2024

CONGRATULATIONS ON WINNING AN IWSC AWARD

At the IWSC, we use a rigorous and thorough judging process. Each sample is tasted by a panel of expert judges overseen by a member of our Judging Committee, who supervises the panels to ensure consistency and fair benchmarking across the competition. The Judging Committee also re-tastes the top-scoring entries for final endorsement.

Our judging session is limited to an average of 65 samples, and panel discussions are encouraged to ensure that each wine or spirit is given the time it deserves.

The judges can be viewed on the results page of our website.

"In a competition where the bar is high, the IWSC judging process is fair but demanding, so achieving a medal is meaningful."

Rebecca Palmer, Corney & Barrow – Wine Buyer

MARKETING SUGGESTIONS

Winning an award will bring your wine, spirit or alternative drink to the attention of the global marketplace, and brands are advised to use their wins as a catalyst to aid sales and spread the word on their award-winning liquid.

Some campaign ideas:

- A press release announcing your award(s)
- A news article on your platforms and sent to your database
- Retailers/distributors promotion to reference your wins online and in store
- An advert to promote your award(s) (e.g. a web banner, display ad, or third-party collaboration)
- An event/tasting to showcase your winning range
- Marketing collateral to include medal artwork

SOCIAL MEDIA SUGGESTIONS

Social media campaigns can help get the news out, engage with current and potential customers and capitalise on your IWSC success:

- Announce your results on all channels, sharing a link to your news story/press release
- Share a photo of your wine, spirit or alternative drink featuring the medal artwork
- Tag @theiwsc and use #IWSC to ensure we amplify your news
- Share links to press coverage
- Update cover photos on Facebook, Twitter and LinkedIn to include medal artwork
- Read our insight report on social media campaigns for key takeaways and tips
